Call for applications for web designer
Deadline: 20 January 2023, midnight (Cameroon time)

The Forest Creative Loft is pleased to announce the opening of a call for a web designer to create a digital platform, an online archive of their Going back through memory lane project which will run from January to September 2023.

The Forest Creative Loft is an experimental creative space that opened in May 2020 in Bali, Douala, Cameroon. A site of infinite signs and potentialities, The Forest uses itself as a symbol and a place of infinite possibilities; both for its positive and opposite traits.
Through its programming, The Forest enables the exchange of knowledge between artists, global and cultural citizens to participate in challenging stereotypes, creating new and rewarding narratives of alternative imaginaries for the African continent.
As part of its activist, social and artistic activities, The Forest has committed itself, with the support of its friends, to participate in the aftermath of the Anglophone crisis by providing moral, mental and financial support to some of the internally displaced people and it is in this context that the Going back through memory lane project is being developed.

Going back through memory lane is a project that aims to participate in the reparation of individual and collective memories through the creation of a digital archive. The project involves field trips to collect voices and stories, a series of workshops and public presentations.

The web designer will be selected in January 2023 via a call for applications, followed by an interview by a committee consisting of the project director, manager, curator and administrative officer.

This call is open to anyone of Cameroonian origin who is fluent in English and French. Knowledge of Pidgin would be an additional advantage.
